

Home Learning

We hope you have enjoyed the challenges we have already set for your child. We thought that you may like some new ones. These new challenges will continue to help construct and support your child's learning and some are based around the up and coming VE day. We hope you enjoy celebrating it together!

Make your own scones. Can you read the recipe and weigh out different ingredients?	Have a VE day party! Can you write an invite to someone in your house? or maybe you could write a shopping list for party food.	Make a paper aeroplane. Can you measure how far your plane can go?	Make up your own dance and perform it to your friends or family online.
Create your own Snakes and Ladders game. Can you write all the numbers?	You could make your own story book. Don't forget to give your book a title and write the author's name!	Can you make your own bunting? You can use your funky fingers to make holes and weave the string through.	Make your own flag. You could copy the British flag or even create your own!
Paint a picture on a stone to make someone smile. You could hide it in your house or outside for someone to find if you go on a walk.	Go on a hunt to find things that are red, white and blue. You could make a tally of how many you found.	Can you collect 10 things that you can find outside and then use them to create your own picture? You could collect sticks, stones, leaves etc.	You could ask a grown up to help you to find out about what VE day is. You could show us what you have learnt in a poster.
Play high frequency word bingo. Write down 9 of the words from your word cards and ask someone to call out each of the words for you to find.	Go on a shape hunt and record how many of each shape you have been able to find.	Ask your grown up to help you to email a picture to a friend or family member. You could even type your own message in the email!	Read a story that you've never read before. We have some e-books on our website that you could look at.

Have fun completing these challenges!
